Award Winning Architects, Lebanon

Nabil Gholam was senior partner at Ricardo Boller's Taller de Arquitectura. After seven years working in France, Spain, China and the United States, he set up NG Architecture & Planning in Beirut in 1994 and in Barcelona in 2006. He will be collaborating on the residential area of Eastown.

“It’s about creating living environments that combine the needs of community, nature and individuals.”

Eastown will provide a quality of life that’s increasingly rare in Cairo’s dense neighbourhoods. It will combine community, nature and the real needs of individuals. It will offer a new urban destination for a rapidly growing population, with a full range of services for residents and companies who want a prestigious address in an urban and landscaped environment.

It is part of our task to ensure the vitality of community life. This is not just about the relationship between individuals, but also about how well individuals integrate with buildings and natural surroundings. Our primary objective is to produce a sustainable and viable project that can thrive over years, decades and centuries. By balancing the demands of population density with access to open space we will ensure lasting success in an era of rapid change.
